SENATOR CHANDLER'S OBSEQUIES.

HALL-AN IMMENSE CONCOURSE OF CITI-THE THE ATTENDANCE-THE FUNERAL SER-VICES AND PROCESSION - DISTINGUISHED PER-SONS PRESENT.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 5, 1879.

Pursuant to previous arrangement the remains of a detachment of the Metropolitan Police, at eight o'clock this morning, from his mansion on Forarrangements and a detachment of the it in the centre hall at the foot of the main staircase, where it lay in state until ne o'clock this afternoon. At fifteen minutes past ight o'clock the Fort street entrance to the City Hall as opened, and a throng of people poured in. As into nairs and as the casket was reached every person, bending over, gazed upon the face of the ed. The casket was of black walnut, lined with white satin. Its exterior was covered with ack silk velvet, relieved with a drapery of gros grain silk. At the head of the coffin was a white oral cross and crown with a base of evergreens, hich rested on a column draped with crape. Or white rested on a couling drapes with crape. On forther side was a centre cross of red, formed of scarlet double geraniums. At the foot of the casket was another column drapped in black, on which was placed a sheaf of wheat with white florat sickle. On top of the coffin was a floral star, given by the Chicago Veteran Ciub. At each end, facing the remains, stood a soldier of the Detroit Light Guard, with a rifle and fixed bayonet at parade rest, each guard as immovable as a statue. Overhead the remains were covered by a canopy of red, white and blue streamers intermingled with folds of costly crape, descending in graceful lines to the four corners of the intersection of corridors. The remains were clothed in the usual black broadcloth suit. The upper half of the body could be seen through a French plate glass covering. The arms were peacefully folded across his breast and the determined face seemed as natural as life. The cease-less stream of people, which poured through the building in two continuous lines, lasted from a quarter past eight A. M. to one P. M., and it is estimated that during the time intervening not less than eighteen thousand persons viewed the re mains. either side was a centre cross of red, RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

The body was removed to the Fort street mansion a little after one P. M., where religious services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Pierson, who delivered a glowing eulogy upon the character and lite of the departed Senator, who, he said, sacrificed himself on the aitar of patriotism. The address was tollowed by a brief and eloquent prayer. The pall-bearers were twenty-five in number, as follows:—Ex-Governor Henry P. Baldwin, James F. Joy, Alanaon, Sheley, George V. N. Lothrop, Christian H. Buhl, Theodore Romyn, Charles T. Govham, Governor Crosswell, John S, Newberry, William A. Moore, S. Dow Elwood, Alexander Lewis, John Owen, General Alger, Judge James V. THE FUNERAL PROCESSION.

At three P. M. the casket was carried to the hearse. The Secretary and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, according to usage on such occasions, wore white sashes and followed the palibearers. The funeral procession then started for the cemetery, headed by a detachment of thirty picked Metropolitan policemen. Next came the Tenth United States infantry, Company A. Third regiment, Michigan State troops; Company G. First regiment, of Michigan State troops; Company F. Third regiment, Michigan State troops; Company G. PROMINENT CITIZENS PRESENT.

The presence of leading citizens from the interior was notable. Among them were Governor Croswell, Senator Ferry and all of the Congressmen from this Btate. Among the distinguished attendants from other States were ex-United States Senator Simon Cameron, Orlenel Burch, Secretary of the United States Senators; Jesse Bright, Sergeant-at-Arms of the United States Senate; Senators Anthony and Burnside, of Rhode Island; Senators Blaine and wife, Senators Logan and Oglesby, of Illinois, and Governors Cullom, of Illinois; Foster, of Ohio, and Smith, of Wisconsin.

TRIBUTE TO THE DECEASED FROM THE OFFI-CERS CLERKS AND EMPLOYES OF THE IN-TERIOR DEPARTMENT.

The flags on all the public buildings were at halfmast and the departments were closed to-day, being the date of the funeral of the late Senator A meeting of officers, clerks and employes of the Interior Department was held to-day to adopt resolutions expressive of their regret at the death of ex-Sen ator Chandler. Secretary Schurz presided, and E. M. Marble and Alonzo Bell in brief addresses expressed the kindly feeling entertained toward the deceased by those who had served under him when he was Secretary of the Interior. A committee, consisting of E. M. Marble, Assistant Attorney General of the Interior Department; Alonzo Bell, Assistant Secretary; J. A. Bentley, Commissioner of Pensions; F. A. Seely, Chief Clerk of the Patent Office, and Z. B. Sturgus, of the Land and Raircoad division, reported resolutions testifying the respect, esteem and affection felt for the deceased by his friends of the Interior Department because of his many acts of kindness and his distinguished public service; also their profound regret at his untimely death; and that in the character and life of Zacharia Chandler, distinguished for his courage, energy, integrity and fidelity to duty and exhibiting rare efficiency in the service of his country as a legislator and executive officer, we find a noble example of a true citizen and a faithful public servant worthy of permanent renown in the memory of his countrymen.

The recolutions were adonted, and it was ordered. Marble and Alonzo Bell in brief addresses expressed

The resolutions were adopted, and it was ordered that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased with assurances of sincere sympathy.

OBITUARY.

JAMES CLERK MAXWELL, MATHEMATICIAN. The death is announced by cable of James Clerk Maxwell, M. A., LL. D., F. R. S., the well known Eng. lish mathematician. He was born at Edinburgh, June 13, 1831; and, after passing through the High School of that city, entered Trinity College, Cambridge, at the age of twenty, and took a very high degree in the mathematical tripes of 18.1. His taste for natural science developed itself with his natural tendency toward the higher branches of mathematics. But Trinity was at the time full of candidates for fellowships: and, thinking his chances of distinction would be better in Scotland than at Cambridge, he accepted the Professorship of the Marischal College. Aberdeen, in 1856. Here he stayed for four years, and many brilliant scholars were sent out into the world from his supervision. His fame gradually spread, in 1860 he was elected to the Professorship of Natural Philosophy and Astronomy, in King's College, London, and eleven years later to the chair of Experimental Physics at Cambridge. He them produced the works by which he will be remembered—a "Treatise on Electricity and Magnetism" and a "Theory of Heat." The Civil Service Commissioners selected him as one of their examiners, and in 1878 he delivered the Reda lecture at Cambridge, the subject being "The Telephone." School of that city, entered Trinity College, Cam-

REAR ADMIRAL WILLIAM REYNOLDS. Rear Admiral William Reynolds, of the United States Navy, died at his residence in Washington norning. Admiral Reynolds was born in Pennsylvania, from which State he entered the navy gradations until he was promoted on the 12th of December, 1873, to the rank which he held at the time of his death. He was in active service for nearly forty-six years, twenty-one of which was passed at sea. During the war he was attached to the North Pacific Station, and its close found him in command of the Lackawanna in those waters. Following his promotion to the rank of Rear Admiral he was appointed to the command of the European Squadron. His last cruise expired in August, 1877, and he was soon after retired, when he took up his residence in Washington.

His remains will be taken to Lancaster, Pa., for burial, The funeral will take place on Saturday next.

WILLIAM L. COGSWELL. Mr. William L. Cogswell died suddenly of heart disease yesterday at his residence, No. 27 East Twenty-sixth street. Mr. Cogswell was one of the old merchants of this city. He was a native of Maine, and seventy-six years of age. About forty years ago he established the firm of Cogswell, Crane years ago he established the firm of Cogswell, Crane & Co., with John J. Crane and Grahams Polly as pariners. They were distillers, and their office was situated for a number of years at the corner of Front and Wall streets. In 1854 the firm dissolved and Mr. Cogswell retired from active business. Since that time, however, he has been connected with several banks and insurance companies as a director. He was a widower and leaves no family.

FREDERICK C. ALLEY, UNITED STATES NAVY. Frederick C. Alley, passed assistant paymaster, United States Navy, died October 25 at the Mare Island Navy Yard, California. Mr. Alley was born in Massachusetts and had been sixteen years in the service, having entered it in 1863. In 1870 he was commissioned as a paymaster, and stationed on the receiving ship Independence at Mare Island.

Joseph E. Bulkley, of the firm of Bulkley & Son, eather dealers, of No. 101 Gold street, died at his residence in East Thirty-eighth street on Monday. He was born in Connecticut in 1812, and came to this city in 1825 to study law, but seeing a chance to embark in the leather business he embraced it and became one of our most successful merchants. Mr. Bulkley leaves a large fortune.

Milo, Alwina Valleria "Linda" was again sung at the Academy of Music

last evening before a large audience, and with the same east, with one exception, that sang it last week, M. David being the Prefect last evening in place of Signor Monti.

The initial performances at the Academy, on the opening of the Italian opera season this autumn, were far from satisfactory, and many of the new-comers failing to equal the expectations raised as to their merits, there was a chill cast upon the season by the public disappointment that threatened to robit permanently of its vitality. But the success of Valleria, the apof its vitality. But the success of Valleria, the appearance of Cary, and the almost constant casting of Campanini, Del Puente and Galassi in the various operas, materially raised the standard of excellence, and the general merit noticeable in the "Linda" of last Wednesday week and the admirable rendering of "Faust" on Monday put almost an entirely new face on affairs at the Academy. Had Mr. Mapleson opened the season with the company which appeared last evening, public favor would not have first gone against him and criticisms unpleasant to have to write would never have been set down. "It is never too late to mend," and a manager who can produce the "Faust" and "Linda" of this week should never have been guilty of some of the earlier performances, and he should be able also to do so well in the future that the past may not alone be forgiven but forgotten. The effect of Monday's success was noticeable in that part of the Academy which is, as it were, the barometer of popular opinion—the body of the house, where are located the seats purchased by the general public. Last evening there was not alone an increased attendance there, but there was an evidence of better feeling existing among the occupants and frequent expression of approval.

In the opera of last evening the same degree of excellence and many of the same minor faults that have been already noted in the HERALD were manifest. In all musical or dramatic performances there must exist, by the very laws of nature, blemishes which it is the province of criticism to point to as plainly as to the beauties of the work, and the object as well as the effect of such declarations should be and is to improve the excellence of the results attained and to encourage an honorable desire 40 excel. Close analysis of methods or effects is not undertaken by the press with a view of exposing individual weaknesses, but, by comparison of that which should be with that which is to point the superior merit of many of the artists of Her Majesty's Opera Company is universally ac pearance of Cary, and the almost constant casting of Campanini, Del Puente and Galassi in the various execution nothing but praise could be written of the famous solo. Her duos with Campanini and Miss Cary were almost equally charming. Her voice harmonizes much better with that of Campanini than with Miss Cary's, and consequently shows her to greater advantage in the former case. In the second act she seemed to lack somewhat in dramatic force when compared directly with so unusually excellent an actor as Galassi, but the sympathetic quality of her voice often fully compensated in one way for the loss of dramatic force in another. As a singer she is steadily growing in popular favor and, while she occasionally fails short of expectations in some detail, the general average of merit is well sustained. To-day the strength of the troupe rests in her and Miss Cary, wherever it may be located later when new scores or new faces are presented by the management.

Miss Cary, wherever it may be located later when new scores or new faces are presented by the management.

Miss Cary is so even and so well known an artist that there is little to write to-day that is new of her singing or of her acting. Comparison with former efforts is all that is left to do, and in this way it may be said that her Pierrotto of last evening was very good, indeed, and as a whole quite up to that of last Wednesday week. The "Cari luoghiov' io passar" was not thoroughly so well done, but the "Per sua madre" was a great improvement on her former rendering of the number. Her phrasing of the opening solo passage in the "Al bel destin" was most creditable, and her conception of the entire music of the due was very beautiful.

Campanini's was the musical success of the evening, and to Galassi belonged the special dramatic honors. Campanini's voice never better exhibited the peculiar sweetness of quality which has placed him without a rival in special roles. The effect produced when he sung the "A consolar affrettisi," the "Se tanto in via," and the "E' la voce che priemers" was matchless, and again showed him not alone a master of musical art but possessed of feeling that he can convey fully in his voice. Faults have been noticed in his vocalization occasionally—rarely—but last night no errors were observable in acything that the did that could be mentioned in legitimate criticism.

em. Galassi as Antonio again made a deep impression in Galassi as Antonio again made a deep impression in a part in which lioneoni and other great artists have made great names for themselves. Accused of imitation half his honors would begone, and it is alike creditable to his talent and his good judgment that he is original as well as excellent. His vocalism was a success; his acting a triumph. Mention of all his solos, or of the various scenes in which he made most admirable "points," cannot be done at this late hour of writing; but no less praise is intended when a summary of them all is made, and it is said that he did all things well. His "malediction scene" was the dramatic climax of the excellent work which he had begun in the finale of the first act.

work which he had begun in the finale of the first act.

Of M. David the less said the better—or rather the more charitable—it will be. He is ulterly misplaced, Cand his defects are greatly magnified by the excellence of those about him. With the exception of this gentleman the cust was a remarkably strong one, making the performance, even with this one drawback, most acceptable to the audience and creditable to the management. The finale in Act third way, as before, cut out, and Arditi's waitz "L'Incontro" substituted, Mile. Valleria singing it charmingly. This substitution of some arm for the composer's appropriate finale is not uncommon in the performance, although the good taste of such a proceeding is, to say the least, questionable.

CHICKERING HALL-NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC CLUB.

The first of the soirées which the above named musical organization propose to give during the present season took place last evening at Chickering liall. The company consists of six well known instrumentalists, who have done much admirable work in the past and are more or less identified severity to be appreciated by the ordinary listener, but no one can refrain from admiring the nice discrimination and evidences of culture with which the subjects are treated. The programme last evening comprised the following numbers, which in themselves suffice to indicate the superior nature of the performance:—1. Quintet in C major, op. 29. Beethoven. Allegro moderato; scherzo; allegro; adagio; presto. Two violins, two violous. Violoucello. 2 Concerto in A minor, S. Bach. Allegro moderato; adagio; pleano, flute, violin, with quintet accompaniment. Miss Florence Copieston. 3. (a) "Der Schiffer" (Curschmann), (c) Liebst du um Schoenheit" (Clara Schumann), (c) "Er ist Gekommen" (R. Franz), Miss Antonia Henne. 4 Piano solo, Kreisleriana, No. 2, op. 16 (Schumann). Miss Florence Copleston. 5. Quartet in G minor, op. 27. new (Greigi; un poco andante; allegro molto agitato; romanza, andantino; intermezzo, allegro molto marcato; presto, al saltarello; two violins, viola, violoneello. By a goodly company of critically inclined musicians who were present the last mentioned quartet was not regarded as eminently praiseworthy, inasmuch as whalover of beauty the work possesses—and it is certainly replete with harmonious effects—the rendition indicated a lack of sufficient rehearsal. With this exception the entire performance was in every way acceptable. The feature of the evening, however, was the advent of Miss Florence Copleston, the daughter of an accomplished journalist and musical critic. It is pleasant to write of her that few débutantes have produced a more agrecable impression, and that the warmth of the praise that again and again recalled her before the audience left no doubt that her long years of study abroad found somewhat of compensation in the manner of her welcome home. Young, graceful and unaffected, she showed throughout her performance the result not only of careful training, but or the art that is inborn. The young lady has a bright future before her, and while she may not become great in the sense wit

Richard Genée's comic opera, "Der See Cadet," draws full houses. The work belongs to the "Pina-fore" class of light and sparkling opers, but is by cessful piece. While it is as mirth-provoking as being replete with pleasing arias, duets and comic solos. The central figure in the "See Cadet" solos. The central figure in the "See Cadet" (naval cadet) is a lively Paris actress, Fanchette Michel, who is forced by a complication of laughable conditions to enter the Portuguese navy as a cadet. This character was admirably sustained last night by Miss Cottrelly, who, full of vivacity and chic, thoroughly earned the plaudits of the house. Miss Fiebach displayed an excellent soprano voice to good advantage as the Queen. Her acting was likewise effective, especially at the closs of the second act, where she participates in a game of chess with living figures. The stage was outlined as a chess board and the pieces were represented by pretty young children, appropriately costumed and moving to the sound of sprightly music. Mr. Lube made an amusing nearsighted master of ceremonies, and introduced into his songs many good local hits. Mr. Adoln, as Dom Jannario, the spendthrift Brazilian millionnaire, and Mr. Schmiltz, as his negro valet, provoked not a little merriment and well illustrated the purposes of the author. To-night Mile. Magda Irachick appears as Mario Stuart in Schiller's tragedy.

"BARBE BLEUE" AT THE FIFTH AVENUE

Offenbach's lively opera bouffe was reproduced last evening by Mr. Grau's company, the cast being the same as before. Boulotte is the part of all others in which the abounding animal spirits and bold beauty of Paola-Marié come most to the aid of her full-toned voice. She sang with perfect abandon, full-toned voice. She sang with perfect abandon, and warmed the audience into demonstrations of pleasure, involving repetitions and recalls, although it was not by any means a full house that greeted her efforts and those of her fellow artists. Capoul's Barbe. Blue grows more into the whimsical lines of true operations, and enjoyed the full favor of the critical last evening. As to Jouard, Mexières and F. Duplan nothing need be added to the tavorable opinion already declared. Why so admirable a performance of opera bouffe does not draw full houses is a mystery; but the fact remains. Perhaps the knowledge of a coming season on the larger stage of Booth's with the vague hope that cheap prices may prevail, induces the public to hold back. In any case it is anomalous.

The first public rehearsal of the Symphony Society of New York during the present season will take place this afternoon at Steinway Hall. The regular concert will be given on Saturday evening. Dr. Damrosch is the conductor and Miss Anna Drasdil the soloist. The programme comprises selections from Beethoven, Volkmann, Baff, Wagner, Schubert and Liszt.

The old Broadway Theatre will reopen on Monday evening as "The Broadway Opera House." The premises have been thoroughly renovated. A horse shoe balcony takes the place of the old gallery, with a new balcony entrance and stairway; new seats have been put in throughout the building; the proscenium is also new and the stage has been enlarged and deepened. Mr. Fryer, the manager, intends to give a series of English operas. The Gor-man Philadelphia Church Choir Pinafore Company, under the management of Mr. James H. MOB LAW.

THIEVES RESCUED BY CITIZENS IN TEXAS-A MARSHAL'S SUGGESTION TO EVADE THE POSSE COMITATUS LAW. I PROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. 1

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5, 1879. Deputy Marshal Johnson has telegraphed from Fort Elliott, Texas, to the Secretary of War for authority to use the United States soldiers at that place as a posse comitatus, without their arms, to aid him in arresting a number of persons who robbed the ordnance depot of government stores and who were arrested by the Marshal's force but rescued by the citizens. He says he is powerless to enforce the law and secure the guilty parties without the assistance of the troops, and if they can act unarmed he can secure the robbers. The law pro hibits the use of troops as a posse comitatus the idea being that if they should act it would be in their capacity as soldiers. On the other hand, a soldier is a citizen, and when off military duty is supposed to be free to act in a civilian's capacity. and the Secretary of War has referred the matter to the Judge Advocate General for his opinion as to whether the request of the Marshal can be granted.

THE OPEN DRAW.

Coroner Higgins, of Hoboken, will hold an inques in the case of Ira Dexter, the engineer who lost his life at the ratiroad bridge across the Hackensack with the progress of musical taste in our metropolis. Their names are as follows:—Richard Arnold, violin; Emil Gramm, viola; Julius Gantzberg, violin; Eugene Weiner, flute; Charles Werner, violoncello; Emanuel Manoll, double bass. The artistic performances of these gentlemen have heretofore been thoroughly classical in their tendency, and it is evidently still their purpose to present to the public only the choice selections of the masters. Some of them are doubtless too advanced in their River on Monday. The jury is composed of promi

STRONG WINDS AND HEAVY SEAS.

LATER ACCOUNTS OF THE CYCLONE NOW CRO ING THE ATLANTIC-STEAMSHIPS BADLY USED.

Vessels arriving yesterday brought further par ticulars of the devestating cyclone that left this coast some days ago. The steamship Duke of Athole, from Calcutta, reports westerly winds and gales; the brig Beatrice lost spars and sails off Hatterss in a hurricane. These were on the South Atlantic and met with the storm from the Gulf. The steamship Croft and Blytheville were on the most extreme northern course. The bark Hants County and the ship Monarch crossed to the Banks some degrees lower, and each met the cyclone blowing with greater or less violence.

The steamship Blytheville occupied a berth near the old cable laying steamer Professor Morse at Pierrepont stores. Her chief officer says that she left Middlesborough on October 18, passed Pentland Frith on the 20th, and anchored off there for over thirty hours on account of a heavy storm. This was a local disturbance of the atmosphere. During the next four days they had strong north winds with heavy seas, which broke over the ship's side and carried off some light joiner work of the saloon. The following days, till the cyclone struck them of the Banks, they had light winds from the south ward and eastward. All throughout the 29th the vessel made little speed against strong south winds and heavy head seas. On the next day the wind came around to the westward. During the following day the Blytheville fell in with the cyclone while standing off Sable Island. The chief off white standing off Sable Island. The chief officer read from the log book that the wind seemed to blow from all four points at once. The sea became troubled, confused and dangerous, finally running mountains high, and breaking over the decks and flooding the engine room, steward's galley and forward parts. The gale moderated on the afternoon of the 1st of November, and within the next four days, before reaching port, it had entirely subsided.

forward parts. The gale moderated on the afternoops of the 1st of November, and within the next four days, before reaching port, it had entirely substided.

THE CROFT'S ROUGH PASSAGE.

The British steamer Croft, Captain Dotchin, lay at her wharf at Woodruit's stores after finishing what her chief officer claimed to be the most stormy of his ocean passages. The Croft left Middlesborough, Yorkshire, on October 17, with the wind blowing from the northeast. She steamed at fair speed out of the English Channel, notwithstanding untoward circumstances, till Cape Wrath was reached on the afternoon of the 20th. The passage from the Hebrides, north of Scotiand, to the Banks was one of continued westerly winds, and strong seas. The water would at times break over the vessel's side, sweeping off everything movable. Then the wind would veer around to the northward and be accompanied by strong, heavy head seas, causing the vessel to labor heavily and straining her badly. "On the morning of October 36," said the chiet officer, "while standing off the Banks of Newfoundland a strong breeze from the west struck us. It increased to a hurricane in the course of an hour, and the sea was confused and dangerous, being a cross between a head and a beam sea. The wind shifted around to the southwest and was accompanied by lightning. This change made navigation very dangerous. Our barometer fell from 29.30 to 29.10, and finally stood at 29. On the 31st, while standing 100 miles off Sable Island, the craft was struck by the most violent winds. It was a cyclone, or the tail end of one," the chief officer explained. "The ship labored heavily in the strong gale and was accompanied by heavy head seas. The vessel shipped large quantities of water, and every movable article was swept overboard. The men were wet to the skin and were prevented from betering their condition owing to their constant need to be on duty in case of danger. The weather moderated on the afternoon of November 1. The vessel has been twenty-two days west of the Banks of Newfoundland, with a continuation of heavy westerly gales, and has had twenty-two sails split and torn rint the pressure.

The bark Julia, of Ellsworth, Mo., Captain Hig-gins, fifty-three days from Marseilles, with merchan-dise to Theodore Michels, reports having experi-enced very bad weather. On October 23, of George's Shoals, she caught a sovere gale from the northwest, with a very bad sea, causing her to labor heavily and ship large quantities of water. The gale lasted forty-eight hours, during which time the lower maintopsail was blown away. No serious damage was received.

Several salis were spins, to the hull.

The bark St. Nicholas, of St. John's, N. The British steamer Telephone, commanded by Captain Thompson, arrived yesterday from Mediterranean ports and reports pleasant weather to the Western Isles, followed by ten days of very severe northwest gales. She received no damage.

THE OCEAN BANK LITIGATION.

The story of the robbery and failure of the Ocean National Bank, on December 12, 1871, was revived yesterday by a decision on appeal from Chief Justice Waite, of the United States Supreme Court. It was in the case of Theodore W. Davis, receiver and plaintiff in error, against Calvin Stevens, executor o plaintiff in error, against Calvin Stevens, executor of the estate of Calvin Stevens, deceased, being an action brought to enforce the individual liability of a stockholder. It was shown on the former trial that on October 29, 1870, the defendant Stevens held 117 shares to his credit on the books of the bank, but that his name did not appear afterward as a shareholder. It was claimed by the plaintiff that these shares were transferred by Stevens to one Eiston, a porter in his samploy, and that purchases afterward made by Stevens were similarly transferred, until on November 22, 1871, there were 161 shares to the credit of Eiston. In the lower court a verdict was directed for the defendant. This judgment is overruled by Chief Justice Waite and a new trial ordered.

ruled by Chief Justice Waite and a new trial or dered.

The Sub-Committee of the House of Representatives Committee on Banking and Currency, composed of Messrs. A. H. Buckner, of Missouri: William Lounsbery, of New York, and W. W. Crapo, of Massachusetts, is in session at the Grand Central Hotel hearing a complaint against Receiver Davis. The principal witnesses in support of the complaint are T. J. Selew, George D. Woodruff, George W. Deboise, Theodore Goldsmith, E. Ellsworth and H. S. Terbell. The charges are elaborate, but the principal one is in relation to the receiver's action concerning a Lake Superior canal speculation. Messrs. Mann and Parsens appear on behalf of the receiver. The investigation will probably be closed to-day.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

Telegraphic advices were received in this city yesterday that the suspended dry goods firm of Shet-tauer, Brothers & Co., of Chicago, had made an un-conditional assignment of their property, for the benefit of their creditors, to Lovi Rosenfeld, father in-law of one of the firm. Other information rein-law of one of the firm. Other information re-ceived was to the effect that they gave a trust deed to their attorney on their store, securing their note for $50,000, payable to their own order, and that one of the chattel mortgages given on Monday on ware-house goods was to an aunt, Matilda Rosenfeld, for $65,550. The other chattel mortgages given at the same time were to secure the Fourth National Bank of New York $25,000, National Bank of Illinois, $25,000, and the International Bank of Chicago, $25,000. These particulars caused much unfavorable comment among the creditors.

Louis Davidson, dealer in boots and shoes, made an assignment yesterday to Thomas R. Turner, giv-ing preferences for $2,652.

CREEDMOOR.

Notwithstanding the chilly weather there was a fair attendance yesterday at Creedmoor to witness the eighth competition for the "champion marks man budge of 1879," This emblem is a fac-simile in gold of the marksman's badge issued by the State of New York, and is given by Brigadier General George W. Wingate. The shooting for the badge was at 200 and 500 yards. Five shots at each dis-tance with a Remington rifle, New York State model.

The shooting was not very good. Mr. J. R. B. Bayley won with a score of 39 out of a possible 50. The next best were S. Clarke (38) and T. G. Dolan (38). The lowest score made by winners of the previous competitions was 41, and the highest 45. There were 39 entries, some taking the privilege of two chances. Eleven competitors made 33 or more, while the shooting of the remaining 28 was very poor, some of them not scoring a single point.

STABBED THIRTY TIMES.

TERRIBLE PIGHT IN A FIVE POINTS BARROOM-A TRAMP ATTACKS THE BARTENDER AND BUTCHERS A FRIEND WHO TRIES TO DE-

A horrible cutting affray took place in that portion of the city known as the Five Points yesterday morning, which for bloodthirsty ferocity could scarcely be surpassed by the worst crime heretofore committed in that locality. In this instance the knife was plied with such murderous vigor that one of the two men whose lives are in immione of the two men whose lives are in immi-nent peril by reason of their wounds was stabbed in thirty different parts of his body. The scene of the tragedy was No. 184 Worth street, where John Conroy, aged about seventeen, attended bar in a low drinking saloon, owned by his step-father, Charles McCarthy. In this place on Tuesday evening a hilarious party of men drank deeply of bad whiskey, and perhaps worse beer, while boisterously discussing the probable results of the election. Among the habitues of the place who were present were Thomas Walsh, aged forty, a friend of the bar keeper, and a middle aged man named Patrick McCormick, a villanous looking vendor of news-papers, who is said by the police to be in the habit of sleeping in station houses and hallways, whichever prove the most convenient to him. It appears that McCormick in the habit of sleeping in station houses and hallways, whichever prove the most convenient to him. It appears that McCormick staggered into the drinking place about midnight, very much intoxicated. He joined in the political controversy and ultimately quarsrelled with some of his acquaintances. As the latter did not wan this company he was told to leave, and on his refusal to do so he was forcibly ejected.

McCormick again entered the pluce, apparently more drunk than he was on the night before. Having demanded whiskey it was given him, and he then commenced abusing Walsh for having expelled him a few hours previously. Seeing that McCormick was intent on provoking a fight Courcy ordered him to leave the place, which he refused to do. Courcy then came out from behind the bar and undertook to put him out by butting him with his head, when McCormick commenced stabbing and cutting him with a large-sized jackknire, having a blade about three inches long and sharpened to a point. In the souffle McCormick used the knife repeatedly on Courcy before the latter got away from him. Then Cohroy cried out that he was stabbed and ran up atairs to where his mother lives, immediately over the drinking place. Meantime Thomas Walsh had jumped to the assistance of his friend Conroy and caught hold of McCormick, intending to throw him out. The latter, who seemed to be worked up to a pitch of murderous frenzy, at once began to use the knife on Walsh, stabbing him again and again until the latter fell to the floor in agnoy. By this time the noise of the disturrance had been heard on the street, and Officer Tierney appeared on the scene and secured McCormick, having first disarmed him. THE WOUNDED MRN'S INJURIES.

As soon as possible Walsh was removed on a stretcher to the Fourth precinct station house, where Ambulance Surgeon Wright shortly afterward arrived with an ambulance from the Chambers Street Hospital. Upon examination it was found that the body of Walsh was almost covered with wounds, nine of which were in the neck, where Detective Philip H. Smith arrested these two men early sesterday morning in a saloon in West Thirty-third street, and in the Harlem Police Court Justice Kilbreth committed them to await the result. Yesterday afternoon Dr. Grube, of the Ninety-ninth Street Hospital, sent a note to the Justice stating that Moran was not out of danger.

FATAL FIRE IN ELIZABETH. .

DESTRUCTION OF A GYMNASIUM AND STARLES AND DEATH OF A STABLEMAN-THE LOSS ESTIMATED AT FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

In Elizabeth N. J., yesterday morning the gymnasium and club stables built in 1869 by D. W. Dimmock were entirely destroyed by fire. A stableman and four horses perished in the flames. The building stood upon the hill, on Maple avenue. The fire was and four horses perished in the flames. The building stood upon the hill, on Maple avenue. The fire was discovered about three o'clock by Officer Elminger, who sounded an alarm, and the fire engines responded. Charles Hoffecker, a farmer, who lives near the stables, was awakened by the fire, ran to the buildings and aroused Mr. McCormack and his family, who live in a part of the Dimmock buildings. The family barely escaped with their lives, and were able to save only one chest of linen out of all their effects. Mrs. McCormack came near being suffocated. After the stables were on fire Mr. McCormack as his son enter the stables with Mr. Hoffecker. He also missed a man who was employed by him, named John, whom he had hired only a few days before, and who slept in the building near the rear. Going in to search for his son he was almost overpowered by heat and smoke, and was compelled to retire. His son was afterward found sate, but the stranger perished. Early yesterday morning the firemen found a skull in the ruins, and at half-past one a part of a human body—the hips and thighs—were discovered. The remains were believed to be those of John, the man whom Mr. McCormack had faired. There were twelve horses in the stables, eight belonging to Mr. McCormack and four to Dr. Woodward. Messrs. Bonnett and Collingwood and others rescued the animals belonging to McCormack, but the others could not be saved. Two cows also perished, and five carriages, two hearses, eight or ton sleighs, three large omnibus sleighs several buggies and three sets of fine harness were destroyed, Mr. McCormack losse everything he had except the eight horses rescued. His loss is estimated at $6,000; insured in the Germania, of Elizabeth, for $3,000. The dwelling house of George J. Cave, adjoining the stables, was destroyed, but the furniture was all saved. The insurance on the Dimmock property is as follows:—Caisse Generale, $2,000; New York Commercial, $2,000; Merchante', of New York, $2,000.

The dwelling house of George J. Cave, adjoining the s mercial, $2,000; Merchants', of New York, $2,000; American, Newark, $2,000; Firemen's, Newark, $2,000.

HISTORY OF THE BUILDINGS.

The club stables and gymnasium were erected by Mr. E. W. Dimmyck and a number of other gentlemen, and in the days of Elizabeth's prosperity were a very fine resort. There were a gymnasium, billiard room, bowling alley, &c., and the place was a select rendezvous, whence the club men rode to and from the depot in fine style in a large and handaome omnibus. The original cost was $50,000. When the club went down the buildings tell into the hands of M. Morgan & Co., of New York, by the foreclosure of a mortgage for $35,000, and for several years past the place has been occupied by William McCormack as a boarding and livery stable, carriage and sleigh storehouse, and the club rooms, which were very finely appointed, as a residence. At the time of the fire the gymnasium contained little of value. When the stables took fire the heat cracked the glass in the windows and the flames leaped out, and in this way Mr. Cave's house was ignited. The stables and gymnasium, at the time of the Are, were the property of the National State Bank, of Elizabeth, who held them under foreclosure of a mortgage of $10,600. The total loss on all the property destroyed is estimated at $50,000. The origin of the fire is unknown; but as the windows of the gymnasium were broken out and the place was accessible to tramps and incendiaries, it is supposed that the place was fired by some such persons either through intent or carelessness.
